

TABOOLA, INC.

DIGITAL PROPERTY SERVICES AGREEMENT

This Digital Property Services Agreement (the “Agreement”) is entered into by and between Taboola, Inc. (“Taboola”) and the below named Company (the “Parties”, each individually, a “Party”) as of the Effective Date (as defined below). It sets forth the terms under which Company shall provide Taboola with advertising inventory on the websites and mobile applications listed in Section II below (the “Properties”, each individually, a “Property”). Taboola shall provide code for its content distribution platform (the “Platform”) for Company to implement in the allocated advertising inventory on the Properties. This code will allow Taboola to use its proprietary algorithm, along with the Properties’ data and information provided by the Platform, to optimize, personalize, analyze, and recommend to the Properties’ users or visitors (the “Visitors”): (i) content, videos, engagement experiences, tools, utilities, and advertisements owned or created by or licensed to Company (collectively, the “Company Content”, where if the Company Content is licensed from a third party it shall be deemed “Company Licensed Content”); and (ii) third-party (“Advertisers”) supplied content, videos, engagement experiences, tools, utilities, and advertisements (collectively, the “Taboola Sponsored Content”, together with the Company Content, the “Recommendations”) for which Advertisers pay Taboola advertising fees to distribute on its network of digital properties. Taboola’s provision of Recommendations, video advertisements, content recommendation services, and any related native advertising services to Visitors via the Platform, SDK technology (if applicable), and any supporting or related services (such as optimization, attribution, or analytics) is referred to herein as the “Services”. For purposes of clarity, Taboola may also offer certain services and products to Advertisers (e.g., data products, brand safety) that are separate and independent from the Services and are not addressed herein.
